

CHARGE Anywhere Partners with Intermec to Offer the Most Rugged Mobile Payment Solution Available

SOUTH PLAINFIELD, NJ (August 1, 2008) – CHARGE Anywhere®, a leading provider of secure Point of Sale (POS) solutions and electronic payment services, is pleased to announce its latest initiative. The CHARGE Anywhere POS Software will now be available for use on the Intermec® CN3 rugged mobile computer creating a complete, secure wireless credit card terminal. The Intermec CN3 mobile computer with CHARGE Anywhere Software combines the smallest, most advanced, rugged computer in the world with a secure, PCI compliant mobile POS solution. This initiative will allow merchants to process credit card payments in any environment with a PCI PABP validated secure payment application.

The touch screen on the CN3 along with the functionality of the CHARGE Anywhere Software and Transaction Manager online application will make it possible for all merchants to capture signatures on the device then review and print them at a later time online, completely eliminating the need to physically store receipts. If a printer is needed, the Intermec PW50 mobile workboard printer offers best-in-class print speeds and a magnetic stripe reader. When used in conjunction with the PW50, the CN3 is the most powerful mobile payment processing solution available today.

"This solution will enable businesses to significantly streamline and improve operations. Additionally, by eliminating the need to store receipts the solution empowers businesses to reduce wasted resources," says John Kemp, Senior Director, Marketing Systems and Solutions of Intermec.

"We are excited to launch our latest technology breakthrough with the Intermec CN3 and CHARGE Anywhere's mobile POS software. Adding the Intermec device to our line of secure mobile payment solutions will open new doors for many merchants," says Paul Sabella, President & CEO of CHARGE Anywhere.

With the combined efforts of Intermec, CHARGE Anywhere has helped shape the future of mobile payment solutions with their latest ground breaking initiative. Both companies are looking forward to the successful launch of this new campaign.
